Attn.: Mr. Michael Swiader

New members are vital to any organization, so we ask you to recommend CBIT membership to banking colleagues internal and external to your own institution and your Accounting and Legal contacts, who can join as associate members.

Membership benefits are substantial compared to the cost. They include:

- Access to both technical and practical information either through periodic meetings, the website or informal discussions with members.
- By acting as a clearing house for communication to and from Federal and State tax authorities, CBIT helps to keep members current on ever-changing tax trends and may often provide Federal and State tax authorities with details on matters of general concern to the industry.
- Industry leaders and government officials have rewarded members attending our annual tax events with provocative presentations covering a wide range of technical tax subjects. We now offer CPE and CLE credits for certain annual events at a reasonable cost.
- A chance four times a year to mingle with your colleagues and exchange ideas in a social atmosphere either after our technical sessions or at our golf/tennis functions.
- CBIT members also have access to the CBIT directory. The directory, conveniently located on the CBIT Website (www.cbit-usa.org), includes member’s names, addresses, phone and fax numbers as well as e-mail addresses.
